

Dear Elm Class

How are you? It has been a while since I have last seen you all and I miss you dearly!

I hope you enjoyed learning all about People Who Help us yesterday. Did you learn anything new? I know how much you really love role playing so I hope you made full use of your imagination re-enacting some of the roles whether it was a firefighter, doctor or a pilot.

Today story of the day is Chicken Licken. Do you know that story? I wonder where we can find chickens. Do you know what sound a chicken makes? What is a baby chicken called? What other animals live on a farm?

Our language of the week this week is Zulu which is one of the spoken languages in Southern Africa. Can you say hello in any other languages?

There is also a fantastic movement challenge on offer which I know you will enjoy!

Please send in more images for our online gallery. It has been lovely seeing some of the work you have completed over the weeks and I look forward to seeing many more☺.

Happy learning!
Miss Dixon
