Good Morning Limetree Yellow!

I hope you are feeling awake and ready for an exciting day of learning, exploring and creating! Your theme for today is: Bees! I wonder what you know about bees already? You are going to read a lovely story called Buzz, Buzz, Busy Bees by Dawn Bentley. I wonder if you will join in with making the animal sounds in the story.

One of your challenges today is to have a go at writing captions for some of the animals in the story. It's been a long time since you have written in your writing books. Do you remember we used to sit in groups at a table and practise writing our letter sound of the day. You used to always start by writing your name at the top of the page – I hope you've still been practising writing your names. I imagine they're looking fantastic now.

I'm going to give you an extra challenge for today: can you spot a bee out of the window, in your garden or on a daily walk? I wonder where the best place to look would be...on the pavement, in a tree or amongst flowers. Let me know if you spot one!

Have a great day.

Love from,

Miss Cassidy
