Dear Elm Class,

Good morning! Hope you are all well and feeling good after a nice long weekend😊.

Did you enjoy using your creative minds on Thursday? I liked the idea of making a den the best? Did you make one too? How about the cornflour activity. Can you describe how that felt when you held it? I found it to be very messy, sticky and quite cold!

Today we will be exploring an Aesop's Fable called The Boy Who Cried Wolf. It's a fantastic story about honesty. We always try our best to be honest don't we? It's one of our Golden and Circle Time rules in the classroom, which we often speak about.

We also have a new language of the week- Macedonian and I have set you a new challenge for today. Wouldn't it be nice if you could research some Macedonian keywords together with your family? Maybe you could find out how to say 'hello' or 'how are you?'

Wishing you a fun day!

Miss Dixon
